

Jane Masojada

Jane is a contemporary figurative artist, specialising in portraiture. After completing a science degree in her native South Africa, she moved to England with Bronek, Sheriff of the City of London.

She studied Art and Design at the Oxford Polytechnic. Jane and Bronek married during their time in Oxford. They have travelled extensively, have lived in three different countries and have five children. Jane continued to paint whilst raising her children. She studied at The Royal Drawing School and completed a Diploma in Contemporary Portraiture at The Art Academy . Jane has exhibited in London, Canterbury and Bermuda and appeared in “Portraits of NHS Heroes”.

She is a liveryman of the Worshipful Company of Feltmakers. Jane has always been a keen horse rider competing in eventing and dressage. She keeps two horses at their home in Surrey and enjoys riding out with her horses and two dogs. Jane and Bronek’s five children and two granddaughters live in both London and Canterbury.

Jane’s surname is pronounced “Ma-so-yar-da”. This short U-Tube video has her husband pronouncing their surname - Bronek pronouncing Masojada. If this is difficult, just introduce her as “Sheriff’s Consort Jane”
